PASSING OPINIONS.

Major Dane, who was recently in this country, has been lecturing about it on the Coast. His opinion of what he saw and understood here is very favorable. At the Metropolitan Temple, San Francisco, he recently addressed an audience of over one thousand people, the lecture being delivered on behalf of the Teachers' Relief Society. His subject was the Hawaiian Islands, and he succeeded in interesting his hearers fully. He traced the history of civilization in these islands from 1827, showing the gradual but steady improvement that had been made in the interval. Comparing the thrift and enlightenment of the native people now with what it was in those days, he said the difference between then and now was as great and marked as between darkness and light. This perhaps is an extreme view to take, but certainly there is great justification even for such a comparison. If the advent of the white race brought physical evil in one direction, it had an elevating influence in another; and although the older people of the Hawaiian race are to the full as industrious as the younger ones, if not more so, the radical change that has taken place in their social and industrial condition fully accounts for this.

Major Dane had a good word to say for our planters also. He said that he had read a great deal about slavery, but he had seen none of it on the Islands. Laborers were free to come and go, and were paid wages ranging from $13 to $36 per month, which he thought compared fairly well with wages paid in America. There were many splendid farms on the Islands, and any one riding through the large and fertile plains could scarcely detect the difference between that country and the prairies of Illinois or Iowa. Large droves of cattle could be seen, and on all the Islands combined there were 100,000 sheep and nearly as many cattle. He closed his lecture with a peroration on the beauties of Hawaiian scenery, the desirability of its climate and the hospitality and warm-heartedness of its people.

We are gratified to be able to reproduce these remarks by our late accomplished visitor, who is a keen and careful observer, and we anticipate substantial benefit from his presentation of the facts of the Hawaiian situation to the people of our own newspapers, some of which did not hesitate to injure the country financially and otherwise to satisfy a private grudge against some individual in authority, or to apply a salve to disappointed and baffled ambition. The testimony of Major Dane in the lecture field will go far towards removing these false impressions; meanwhile he has laid all classes of people in this country under obligations to him for the manly and intelligent exposition he has given of Hawaiian affairs.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

The business outlook is encouraging. The sugar crop promises to be heavy, and with a prospect of remunerative prices there is a better tone all around. Nevertheless, the movement of merchandise is slow, although collections are fairly good. Greater confidence, however, has been created in consequence of the new arrangement by the Oceanic Company, whereby Honolulu is made the ultimate terminus of both the Australian and Hawaiian lines. If a different arrangement had been made the effect would have been depressing; as it is, confidence has been restored, and those most inclined to despond are now satisfied that a new era of prosperity is dawning upon the country. Rice is an average crop. The yield of sugar will be in excess of that of any former year. An impetus has recently been given to immigration for colonization purposes, but it is premature to say with what result. On the whole, the outlook is more favorable than it has been for quite a long time past, the opinion generally being that bedrock has been touched.

The Circus.

This evening the last performance but one will be given at the circus. A big programme has been prepared, to conclude with the side-splitting farce, "The Lover's Stratagem, or the Imp of the Magic Barrel." The company have been actively rehearsing this farce, and there will be any amount of fun. The last performance will be given on Monday evening, as the company leave on Tuesday for Maui, only returning in time to embark for San Francisco.

A Fatal Accident.

A Chinaman was out riding at Honolulu, Hawaii, one day last week, when his horse took fright and ran away at a terrible rate. The Chinaman slipped off one side of the animal, but his right foot getting entangled in a rope, he was dragged a considerable distance before he got free. When picked up he was dead, his body being frightfully bruised. A four-horse team took fright at the runaway and bolted, the driver being thrown to the ground, but he was not seriously hurt.

Funeral Obsequies of the Late Lieutenant R. E. Peck, U. S. N.

The funeral service for the late Lieutenant Peck, U. S. N., took place yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at St. Andrew's Cathedral. The remains, which have been lying at the undertaking establishment of Mr. Williams since they were landed from the Mariposa, were taken in a hearse to the Hawaiian Hotel. Here a procession was formed in the following order: Members of Geo. W. DeLong Post G. A. R.; the undertaker; hearse; His Excellency George W. Merrill, American Minister Resident, and Mr. Justice McCully, on foot; carriage containing Mrs. Peck, widow of the late Lieutenant, and Mrs. Peck, mother of the deceased. The procession moved off slowly to St. Andrew's Cathedral. The Royal Hawaiian Band was stationed in the churchyard, and played in a very impressive manner Handel's "Dead March in Saul" as the procession passed through to the front door of the Cathedral. The coffin, which was wrapped in the stars and stripes, was lifted from the hearse by a detachment of police in charge of Deputy Marshal Dayton, and placed on a hand bier. All being in readiness, it was carried to the channel of the church, the Rev. George Wallace reading the opening sentences of the burial service: "I know that my Redeemer liveth," etc. The church was well filled with the friends of the deceased. His Majesty the King was represented by Colonel Chas. H. Judd, Chamberlain. His Excellency Governor J. O. Dominis, Hon. A. S. Cleghorn, His Excellency Geo. W. Merrill, United States Minister Resident; H. B. M. Commissioner Major Wodehouse, Mr. Justice McCully, Geo. W. DeLong Post, G. A. R., Majors Antone Rosa and J. D. Holt of the Governor's Staff, Captain Hayward and officers of the steamship Mariposa were present in the church. A choir of ladies and gentlemen sang the 90th Psalm to a minor chant, after which the Rev. George Wallace read the lesson. This was followed by the singing of the hymns, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "There is a Green Hill far Away." The latter a favorite with the deceased. The service concluded with several special prayers and the benediction. The elegant coffin was covered with many beautiful floral offerings. As the remains left the church the band played the "Sweet By-and-By." The coffin was taken back to the undertakers, and will be prepared for shipment and placed on board the Mariposa this morning, to be taken to Yreka, California.

A Great Scheme of Colonization.

The preliminary prospectus of the promoters of a great land colonization scheme on the Island of Oahu has been presented to us. The promoters are among the best known and most respected citizens of Honolulu, and their endorsement of the scheme is enough to give it the most favorable consideration of the public. The scheme is the work of Honolulu and Kahuku, and the leasehold of Kawaihoa, on this island, to which reference has been already made in the ADVERTISER. The project is a big one, and if it can be carried out in its integrity would confer incalculable benefit upon this country. It would introduce men of capital, energy and skill, and bind them to the land by ties of ownership. Such a change in the drift and condition of immigration would be most desirable in itself, and the results are so self-evident, and so beneficial that there should be no two opinions upon its desirability.

It is proposed to organize a company with a capital of $1,200,000 to purchase the properties named, together with between 12,000 and 15,000 head of cattle and 250 horses and mules. The estates contain in all 115,750 acres of land, of which 63,250 acres are freehold, the balance of 52,500 being leasehold. These ranches have been already partially described in our columns, and we shall not encumber this article with a repetition. Suffice it that they lie very conveniently to Honolulu as a market for their meat product, and contain several thousand acres sugar and rice land, the uplands being suited for fruit farming, vineyards, dairying and grazing. The climate is salubrious, and there are the further advantages which are not to be had in cold countries—cattle do not need shelter, and outdoor employment can be prosecuted the year round.

But outside its business intent this "preliminary prospectus" is one of the most valuable publications that has ever issued from the press in this Kingdom. It does not confine itself to setting forth the advantages of the project in view, which has many points to commend it. It goes on to give a fund of very valuable information about the country at large, which is calculated to beget an interest in it, and rouse a spirit of inquiry abroad wherever the prospectus is circulated. As a guide to the industrial condition of the Hawaiian Islands this prospectus and appendices are the best and most reliable that has yet been issued on the ground they cover. We should not be doing justice to the subject were we to omit to credit Mr. B. F. Dillingham with this valuable work.

In conclusion, it may simply be stated that the net income of the properties to be dealt with by the proposed Hawaiian Colonization Company (limited) yields 5 per cent on the capital sum of $1,200,000 which it is proposed to raise to carry out the scheme, and that this income might very easily be doubled. The promoters are among our most substantial and enterprising citizens, and as a guarantee of their good faith one-third the capital stock has been subscribed here.

At St. Andrew's Cathedral to-morrow at 11 a. m. the Right Rev. the Bishop of Honolulu will hold an ordination service, when Mr. W. H. Barnes, late of St. Agnes' College, Canterbury, will be ordained a deacon. The Rev. George Wallace will preach in the evening. Sunday School at 10 a. m.

In another column will be found the order of procession for the funeral of the late ex-Governor Kanoa. The Rev. H. H. Parker, pastor of Kawaiahao Church, will conduct the services. After the service is over in the church, the remains will be taken to the Kawaiahao Cemetery, and will be buried in the family vault.

Yesterday morning Jack Consens, the backback rider attached to Wood's Australian Circus, was practicing a new act of turning a somersault on a horse's back, when he overbalanced himself, falling on the animal's back, displacing one of his knee-caps. He put it back in place himself, and will be out again in a few days. It is not the first time the same cap has been displaced.

Police Court.

BEFORE POLICE JUSTICE BUCKERTON. FRIDAY, November 13th.

Geo. Vogt and G. K. Cavanagh were further remanded.

Hing Wo was charged with being a common nuisance, by keeping pigs within the city limits. An officer of the Board of Health had given him a week to remove the nuisance, but he failed to do it. The neighbors complained of the nuisance in strong terms. His Honor found him guilty, and fined him $25, with $320 costs.

Twelve Chinese were charged with gaming. The prosecution entered a nolle pro. against three of them. One was acquitted; the others were found guilty, under the laws of 1884, fined $10 each, and sentenced to imprisonment at hard labor for 48 hours. One, Ah Sam, noted an appeal. A. Magoon and W. Sea appeared for the prisoners.

ODE TO WOMAN.

Dearest woman! Nature's creation fairest!
True maidhood will thy praises ever sing;
To all the joys of earth in which thou sharest,
Thou bring'st to purest hearts a royal ring.

Though in thy ranks we count some fair deceivers,
By whose false charms life's peace has been destroyed,
Yet still the best of us are firm believers
That without thee life is not all enjoyed.

As mother first we feel thy fondest power,
Then sisters claim attentions warm and true,
Sweetheart and wife their heavenly blessings shower,
And daughter gives man's heart another hue.

In youth and manhood how the name of mother
Will stir with feelings strong each noble heart;
At mention of that word man cannot smother,
The silent love that is of life a part.

Who has not felt when blessed with loving sister
Influence of her power, so sweet and kind,
Saw as a brother who has loved and kissed her,
Who will deny the closest cords that bind.

A world of words we would bestow on sweethearts
Were not their secrets with true men secure;
A wealth of thoughts, no man the slightest innuendo,
They are too charmed, too sacred and too pure.

Young wife and mother, who can write thy pages?
The beauty of thy life so much expands;
Would be a faithful task of endless ages,
Commanding more than poet's pen commands.

In infancy and childhood's tender hour
Thy guiding hand and gentle, loving care,
Exerts unseen a mild, potential power,
That bears in life a most important share.

From youth's long days, when happy hearts are lightest
Through dawn's young years, to man's exultant age,
Woman's heavenly power will shine the brightest,
And stamp its impress on life's serious page.

'Tis then thy charms to man are first unfolded,
And love within his breast begins to steal,
What else so fair has ever been so moulded,
That can to him so touchingly appeal.

The brave man yields, with love, his purest passion,
And when he makes of thee his darling bride,
He cares not for the world nor frills of fashion,
Absorbed in thee thou art his only pride.

'Tis thus to make all joys of life the sweeter,
And shower its blessings in profusion round,
Assist the dreary hours to fly the faster:
In thy soft charms life's calm contentment's found.

To noble man in prime of life, 'tis surest,
Thy woman's comfort is his strongest stay,
To thee he looks for sympathy the purest,
Thy warm affections all his life's ally.

But in declining years thy balm is sweetest,
When age looks back to youthful days, so dear,
A soothing daughter's love offerings meetest,
Will smooth life's path and bring pathetic tears.

When death is here and dear ones have departed,
Then do we see thy angel face appear,
When worn with grief and almost broken-hearted,
Then most the name of woman we revere.

Whenever woman's name by chance be spoken,
Seek not to yoke lips unless to speak in praise,
Give not by word or look the smallest token:
Against her name your voice you dare not raise.

May all the world forever, most adore thee,
Dear woman, giving life its greatest charm;
Highest-born intuition, we inspire thee,
Implant in man ambition, guide him from harm.
